

Similar needs exist in the realm of public health. Diseases and injuries occur on a daily basis, but too often—in the desperately poor places where Sports Outreach ministers—medicines and medical supplies are simply not available. Education surrounding disease prevention and first aid are occurring; in fact, SOM chess pioneer-turned-medical doctor, Samuel Mayanja, recently facilitated a public health seminar at the SORC (Sports Outreach Resource Center) near Kampala, Uganda. Precipitated by an outbreak of cholera in some slum areas, the focus aimed at helping children improve personal hygiene and general cleanliness in their homes.

As with Sports Outreach feeding initiatives, public health programs require a continuous flow of funding. Perhaps you would consider a monthly or one-time donation to defray costs of medical equipment, first aid resource, or antibiotics. It is through practical ways such as food and medicine that people often get their first glimpse of the care that God has for them. As they experience God’s love for them, hope can begin to be restored and opportunities for further relationships can be developed, leading to transformed lives!
